VIZCAYA was built by businessman James Deering (1859–1925), who wintered on the property beginning in 1916. The extraordinary European-inspired estate, created by laborers and craftsmen from the United States, the Caribbean and Europe, is nestled in a subtropical hammock.

Vizcaya introduces visitors to a time when America's wealthiest industrialists created lavish homes inspired by the palaces of Europe. The Main House was intended to appear as if a family had occupied it for centuries, with its 34 decorated rooms reflecting a variety of periods and styles. Vizcaya also features innovative technologies and modern conveniences of the early 20th century.

The expansive gardens mix Italian and French design with plants that thrive in Vizcaya's subtropical setting. They showcase an array of statues, fountains and architectural follies. In addition to the Main House and gardens, the estate includes a village area that is being restored for future public enjoyment.

Vizcaya was designated a National Historic Landmark in 1994 and is accredited by the American Association
